About Copper to the World

Copper to the World is Australia's premier international copper conference — where industry leaders, innovators, investors, and policy-makers converge to shape the future of one of the world's most critical commodities. Proudly presented in partnership with the South Australian Government, the event spotlights copper's central role in global electrification, renewable energy, technological advancement, and the transition to net zero.

South Australia is leading the charge. With a bold ambition to triple copper production to 1 million tonnes per annum by 2030, the State is accelerating exploration, enabling next-generation discoveries, investing in advanced processing and infrastructure, and championing partnerships that drive sustainable, competitive growth. As global demand rises, South Australia is positioning itself as a trusted supplier of ethical, low-carbon copper to the world — and Copper to the World is the platform that brings this vision to life.

Since its launch in 2015, Copper to the World has grown into a must-attend international forum— recognised for igniting collaboration, showcasing breakthrough innovation, and tackling the opportunities and challenges shaping the copper value chain. Held in Adelaide, the event attracts a high-calibre audience across mining, METS, technology, investment, government, and research.

For sponsors and exhibitors, Copper to the World offers unmatched brand visibility, relationship-building, and thought-leadership opportunities. Align with the sector's most influential decision-makers, elevate your organisation's profile on the global stage, and connect directly with partners, customers, and future collaborators driving the industry forward.
